The Eyes See What the Ears Hear

Dear families,

Our research group has begun an exciting project looking at how children with Down syndrome make sense of the information that they see and hear in speech. For example, when someone speaks to us, we hear the sounds coming from their mouths, and we also see how their lips move. This skill is believed to be very important for learning language and communication. The question we aim to answer is: How do children with Down syndrome use this skill, and how does it help in their development (especially in their language)? To do so, we need your help!

The research project is headed by Dr. James Bebko, a professor at York and clinician. His research has focused on the important connection between language and thinking in children and has been published in major psychological journals and has been presented at various conferences. This work has been approved by the ethics committee at York University.

What is involved?

We ask children to watch a screen with a woman's face, some marbles, and some flowers projected on it, for 15 minutes. During the video presentation, we ask the children to repeat what they think they have heard and to point to the screen. We videotape where they look for this 15 minutes. Please note that the videotapes will not be shown to anyone other than the researcher, are kept in a locked cabinet in a private room at the university, and are destroyed after they are analysed. As well, we do a brief screening of their language and thinking skills.

We expect that the entire project would take at most 1 hour. This study can be done in one session, or broken up into two smaller sessions if required. Based on our work so far, most children who participate appear to enjoy the tasks. We would be happy to share the results of how your child did on these tasks with you. As thank you for your child's time, they will receive $20 in the form of cash or a gift certificate to a book store.

 Our research can be conducted either at York University or in your home –whichever is more convenient for you and your child. ******

Who can be involved?

We are looking for children with Down syndrome between the ages of 6-18 years, with no visual or hearing impairments.

OUR RAINY GOLF TOURNAMENT

It never rains on a golf course apparently—if you are a golfer that is!! The warm rain came down all afternoon but never stopped a dozen teams from playing in our 4th Annual Golf Tournament sponsored by M & C Hydraulics. Steve McNulty generously took over the title of head sponsor and was instrumental in soliciting teams and prizes for the event. The Wolf 101.5/Kruz once again donated numerous radio spots heard regularly on their station. Steve won the putting contest for the second year in a row and Craig Williamson, an employee at M & C finished second. Terry Parker and teammates John Saltern and Ernie Rouse took home gift certificates for finishing first. Everyone enjoyed a wonderful dinner, great prizes and had fun bidding at the silent auction. Many thanks to Keystone Links Golf and Country Club for their hospitality and the surprise donation. We would like to recognize the following hole sponsors and prize donors, who helped raise over $2,700 to support programs and services at our agency:
